Letter from Loudoun County.
[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]
LEESBURG, Va., March 14.—Petitions signed by more than 700 voters would soon have been forwarded to the Legislature in opposition to the bill conferring the action of the Board of Supervisors in granting to the town of Leesburg the privilege of occupying with a market house and town hall a portion of the court green. However, on last night, the Council determined not to press the matter and this scheme falls to the ground.

We have had some very high winds, and yesterday the thermometer reached down to 21°; but this morning there are only two inches of ice on sheltered places, the wind having abated the waters too much to allow of its freezing. The long hoped for and almost despaired of melting on the Leesburg and Aldie turnpike has been commenced, and if any more wind employment at fair wages in a healthy country they can get it here till Nov. 1, 1874.

The people of upper Loudoun are in high spirits at the near approach of the railroad to Purcellville station, and efforts will be made in earnest to carry it to Snicker'sville, some six miles further on, and 54 or 55 miles from Alexandria.

This last station will stand in the same relation to the Union, Bloomfield and Upperville region that Piedmont, on the M. & O. R. R., does now, but will be some miles nearer to Alexandria, and merchants in your city would do well to attend any celebration of the opening of the stations at Purcellville, Round Hill and Snicker'sville.

The region is a very fine one; the people are wealthy, thrifty or thriving, and there is profit to both sides in business transactions with them. I understand the grangers from Clarke sent seven four horse wagons to Hamilton in a train and under the tender of it two young men for supplies. The train is said to have reloaded the people who saw it of a small army train.

This is a species of co-operation that bears hard upon that large class of people, who own teams which are employed in hauling, but who produce but little. Whether it will in the long run be better than the old system, time only can determine.

It may bring the farmers into more direct communication with the city consumers, but it will be likely to drive southward or westward the small consumers in the immediate neighborhood. But should it be followed up by a subdivision of the large farms, it may result in great good. Thorough tillage cannot be accomplished without an abundant population, and a farm which is one-half idle cannot be remunerative.

WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE.—William and Mary College, the oldest college but one in the United States, appeals to Congress for a small grant of land or money, to repay her for the useless destruction of her library and buildings by the ravages of war. We trust that the Virginia Legislature will adopt a resolution asking Congress to act favorably upon this appeal. There is no college which surpasses her in a long list of illustrious alumni. Besides three Presidents of the United States, including Thomas Jefferson, the Richmond Enquirer says that her alumni embrace thirteen United States Senators; twenty-eight members of the lower-House of Congress, of whom two were Speakers; twenty-five judges of the higher courts of Virginia; thirteen United States judges, of whom one, John Marshall, was Chief Justice; four generals, of whom one, Winfield Scott, was Lieutenant General U. S. A.; two State judges of Missouri; two chancellors of Virginia; two members of the executive council of Virginia; one president of same body; one chancellor of Kentucky; three Attorneys General of Virginia; six foreign ministers; one Adjutant General of the colony of Virginia; the mover of resolutions of 1788-'89, Mr. John Taylor, of Caroline; two treasurers of the colony of Virginia; one Secretary of State of Virginia; eleven cabinet officers; three United States District Attorneys; three Professors at the University of Virginia; three signers of the Declaration of Independence; one aid to Washington; two Adjutant Generals U. S. A.; two United States Marshals; one Mayor of Baltimore; Chancellor Wythe; Peyton Randolph, the first President of the Continental Congress; two Commanders of the U. S. Navy; and last, but far from least, eight Governors of Virginia; one Lieutenant Governor, and six Governors of other States! Also, George Croghan, the gallant defender of Fort Sandusky. In all over one hundred and fifty men of pre-eminent distinction.

Besides these there are hosts of others who have adorned every honorable station in life. Among those now dead may be mentioned: Hon. William H. Macland, late rector of the "Sobrinas" at 5c, and "Philadelphia" at 10c. George Tucker, John H. Henshaw, editor of the Richmond Whig; Captain O. J. Wise, editor of the Enquirer; his brother, Rev. J. A. Wise, and Dr. Beverly St. George P. Peachy. Many of her living alumni are men of either prominence or promise, among whom we may mention:—Hon. James Lyons, her present rector; ex-Governor and Judge Wyndham Robertson; General William B. Taliaferro, the hero of Fort Wagner; George Wythe Munford, the compiler of the new code of Virginia; Hon. R. L. Montague, Colonel William Lamb, of Fort Fisher fame; Richard Coke, present Governor of Texas; Hill Carter, of Shirley; Judge John W. Brockenbrough, Hon. Alexander H. H. Stuart, John O. Steger, Judge W. M. Crump, Hon. Robert Ould, George D. Wise, the editor and poet, James Barrow Hope; Rev. J. D. D. Wingfield, Rev. A. M. Randolph, D. D.; Rev. J. S. Lindsay, Rev. J. R. Hubbard, D. D.; Judge T. P. Smith, General Bernard Peyton, Charles S. Stringfellow, General E. R. Bagwell, and a number of others too numerous to mention.

Col. Ewell, the President of the College, is a brother of the late Gen. Ewell, and a grandson, by the mother's side, of Mr. Stoddard, the first Secretary of the Navy.— Lynch News.

FINE CIGARS.—We have recently added to our always large and superior assortment of CIGARS a few new and very choice brands, to which we invite the attention of smokers. Our "Sobrinas" at 5c, and "Philadelphia" at 10c each, cannot be excelled for the money. As we always make our purchases largely in excess of our immediate demands, our stock has the great advantage of slow drying on our shelves before being offered for sale.
